Time's running out but I live life to full

Amazing story of skating champion's fight with cancer

A CHAMPION ice-skater who has only weeks to live has told of her battle to enjoy her final days with her children.

Katie Scarbrough (31) is an ex-British Junior ice-skating champion and now the young mother of two — Sophie is four and Sam eight — is inspiring thousands with her fund-raising. Katie was told last September that she had just six months to live after being diagnosed with bowel cancer.

BY AMANDA POOLE

She said: "I need to stay as normal as possible for my kids and myself. If anything positive can come out of me having cancer, by raising money for charity, then that's what I want to do.

"That's what keeps me strong."
